How to apply?

After the payment of the enrolment fees + 40% of the tuition fees GASTRONOMICOM will provide you the 4 letters necessary to apply for the student visa at the French Embassy.

First you will have to register to Campus France doing the first interview for the Embassy or Consulate. This procedure takes around 2 months. They will check your level of English (because the lessons are conducted in English in our school), your goal, why you want to come to study in France and your financial possibility to stay in France. If all this is ok then you will get the visa without any problem. A strong motivation in Gastronomy is important for them as well as for us!

On the letters GASTRONOMICOM will provide you to get it, we explain that our classes are conducted in English and that you will have French lessons nearby so they will not test your French but your English to be sure that you can follow the lessons! So don't worry about this point! Most of our students are beginner in French when they arrive!

The file:

Your application must include all documents required to be studied. The documentation requirements often vary from one country to another; there is no predefined and international list. You can usually download the list from the embassy or consulate website. You will also be required to pay for the administration costs.

It is important to know that a file with missing documents will be systematically rejected. So remember to provide all the documents requested.

For long-term visas, waiting times vary from one country to another. It is therefore essential to make the application at least 2 months before the departure date to anticipate delays and other problems you may encounter.

Once your application is accepted, a sticker will be placed in your passport to prove possession of a visa. In case of refusal, you can challenge the decision (refusal of visa) to the Board of appeal, but you must also present a new visa application:

Commission des Recours contre les décisions de Refus de visa
BP 83609 44036 Nantes Cedex 01

Once in France:

Once you have arrived in France, you will have to give to school the form titled “demande d’attestation OFII” (submitted to you along with the visa).

Then, the Direction Territoriale de l’OFII will contact the school in order to schedule an appointment for “validate your visa”.

GASTRONOMICOM will accompany you every step of the way.

We strongly recommend that you contact Campus France for additional information:
